Behavior Analysis and Social Action functions as a forum for the discussion of ethical, social, and political issues as they relate to the field of behavior analysis. It serves as a vehicle for the critical appraisal of the effects, both practical and theoretical, of behavior analysis as an actual or potential force capable of contributing to the oppression as well as the liberation of humanity.

BASA is the official journal of Behaviorists for Social Action, a special interest group of the Association for Behavior Analysis. As such, we are mandated to print the following:

“The Association for Behavior Analysis recognizes and encourages expression of the diverse interests of its members, some of whom have organized themselves into different special interest groups. Behavior Analysis and Social Action is published by one of these interest groups, Behaviorists for Social Action.” The ideas expressed in this publication do not represent the opinions or beliefs of the Association as a whole.

BFSA Statement of Purpose

Behaviorists for Social Action is an international organization committed to the application of behavior analysis in the struggle against social injustice. We unite with those in education, health care, and social services in their efforts to serve the people. Our involvement also includes efforts to combat racism, sexism, ageism, unemployment, unsafe working conditions, economic exploitation of wage and salary earners, and the threat of war.

We seek to infuse these activities with a scientific analysis of individual behavior — both practical and theoretical — which, when coupled with a scientific analysis of society, can lay the base for a just society, eventually to be free of the abuses that characterize the present one.

Furthermore, we oppose the applications of science and technology, including behavior analysis, which exacerbate social inequities and oppression. At the same time, we defend the operant analysis of behavior against undue attack.

We are politically heterogeneous, encompassing the numerous diverse perspectives that are committed to progressive social change. We firmly believe that the breadth of viewpoints represented in BFSA is the foundation of our strength and a source of exciting intellectual vitality.
